

Who to Call for What List

When in doubt please start with your daughter or son's advisor. The combination of no local cell service and our skepticism about the qualitative benefits of multi-channel communications (and the fact that we don't have a fancy all school voicemail system) means that almost always, e-mail is the best method for initial contact. However, sometimes urgency or practicality dictates a call. When in doubt call the school during business hours and Jill Brady will connect you to the right person. Chart below shows "who to e-mail or call for what".
